

Significance of the Issue

- Does the student recognize the importance of the issue or problem, its complexity, and its significance to citizens and/or residents of Canada?
- Has the student acknowledged that there are alternative viewpoints, perspectives, and/or values regarding the issue or problem that are held by individuals and/or groups whose perceptions conflict with those of the student?

Personal Judgments

- Has the student established a meaningful context for the chosen position or proposed solution?
- To what extent are the student's arguments or ideas based on logical reasoning and valid assumptions rather than on uninformed beliefs or unsubstantiated assertions?
- To what extent has the student considered the personal, social, economic, and/or political effect(s), outcome(s), and/or consequence(s) that may stem from adoption of the chosen position or application of the solution advocated?

Supporting Evidence

- Does the student select evidence (from the source information provided, from what has been studied in class, or from other valid sources) that is related to the issue or problem at hand?
- Has the student presented verifiable and factually accurate examples that are either examined in detail (depth) or drawn from a number of relevant instances or case studies (breadth)?
- How well has the student established a relationship between the evidence selected and the arguments or ideas presented?

Clarity of Communication

- Is the response clearly focused and does the student develop the arguments or ideas so that the reader can follow the student's reasoning from the beginning to the end of the response?
- To what extent does the student demonstrate control of conventions of language, including sentence construction, diction, grammar, and mechanics?
